

From: Claire Ferguson <claireferguson82@yahoo.co.uk>
Date: 27 May 2010 at 15:02
Subject: [bmph3] Read this if you want beer at your hash!

HHHey HHHashers,

as you all know, no one has volunteered to act as Beer Meister on this year's Mismanagement, which means that there is a serious risk that we will become a running club with a no-drinking problem.

So, as promised in our manifesto, the BITCHes have decided to shake things up and we are now in search of a So Not The Beer Meister. Rather than having to schlep beer to and from every run this will now be a coordination role- we're looking for brains rather than brawn. We have this under control for the next couple of runs, but after that we're going to need some assistance.

We also need some cooperation from those of you with cars. What we want is to know which of you would be willing to very occasionally take beer home after one run and bring it back to the next one. If everyone is willing to help out, then no one should have to do this more than once every couple of months. It will be the So Not The Beer Meister's task then to keep track of who has the beer, who gets it next, how much is left, and what needs to be bought.

So please email to let us know

- 1) are you willing to bring beer now and then?
- 2) do you want to be on team BITCH?

Also, no beer is bad, but if you don't all start remembering to bring ice to the runs then you'll end up with no warm beer, which is even worse

your GMs
IceTrix and Pink Panther